SHARP RALLY FOLLOWS DROP IN NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

Unfavorable Predictions Failed to Materialize and Prices Strengthened in Response to Heavy Trading-Condition of Corn Crop Is the Center of Interest in Wall Street-General Recovery Noted in Leading Lines.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. New York, July 9,-There was a substantial and very general recovery in the stock market to-day on the fallure of some of their lead without disturbing prices. This programme was upset first by the unexpected caution of, the investing public and next by the equally unexpected extra holidays. But the liquidation, when it came, was so thorough that it effected in a day the readjustment to which a week would ordinarily have been devoted. Professional operators for the decline did not neglect so promising an opportunity, and it was their work which broke this morning's market further, only to recover shortly after the first hour, when the upward movement became general.

Of the stocks which declined most yesterday, St. Paul recovered 2½ of its 8 points. Louisville gained 2½, this being its loss during yesterday's depression, and so on over thal and very general recovery in the stock market to-day on the fallure of some of the more unfavorable reports of yesterday to assume definite form. Interest was contered chiefly in reports of the condition of the corn crop, which continued however, to be disturbing. No rain or indications of moisture were visible to-day in the corn States, and the price of that staple experienced a sharp advance owing to the poor outlook. The same unfavorable weather conditions were reported in the Southwest, and the outlook for the growing cotton crop was also said to be somewhat impaired.

More Cheerful Money View.

A more cheerful view was taken of the monetary situation, and the call rates ruled easier than yesterday. Considering how large a part the element of unreasoning fright played in the wholesale liquidation yesterday the recovery witnessed in to-day's market was entirely logical. There was undoubtedly some very heavy selling of real holdings yesterday, and these sales very plainly had their basis in the rather unusually numerous factors of unsettiement, which had developed over the fourday hollday.

The truth probably is that some of these larger interests had planned a week or two ago to shake the bag when the "July rein Louden market for American stocks of the condition of the very weak on pressare principally from London market for American stocks of the London market for American stocks of the lead very weak on pressare principally from London market for American stocks of the lead very weak on pressare principally from London market for American stocks of the lead very weak on pressare principally from London market for American stocks of the lead very weak on pressare principally from London market for American stocks of the lead very weak on pressare principally from London market for American stocks of the lead very weak on pressare principally from London market for American stocks of the lead very was now howe for New York, and a generally from London market for American stocks of the lead very was hade

GARBAGE REDUCTION BILL IS CONSIDERED.

South Side Citizens Urge Council Committee to Have Plant Removed From City Limits.

DECLARE PLACE A NUISANCE.

Short Contract, It Is Asserted, Would Give Opportunity to Arrange for a Site Remote From Habitations.

The Committee on Sanitary Affairs of the City Council conducted a public hearing yesterday afternoon on the bill to authorize the Board of Health to enter into a seven-year contract for the reduction of garbage. Committeemen Sheehan, Gibson and Schnell were present. Assistant Health Commissioner Francis appeared instead of Health Commissioner Starkloff, who, Mr. Francis said, was sick.

Delegate Karbe and Messrs, H. C. Koenig, J. H. Belz, J. F. Doeringer, Ed Rosenthal and C. Brinkop of the Tenth Ward Improvement Association, protested against continuing the South Side works. Mr. Blakely was present for the company, but he declined to enter into any discussion, further than to assert that no odors emanate from the plant.

emanate from the plant.

Mr. Karbe reviewed the attempts of South Side residents to have the works removed. He said that the people of the neighborhood think the city would do well to make a new contract for only a year or so, and in the meantime arrange to have other works located beyond the city limits. He said that the works of Washington, D. C., are located thirty miles outside the city. Mr. Koenig argued that a short term contract should be made now, and afterwards another contract be made, for not less than fifteen years, for works outside the city or remote from populated districts. He criticized the new ordinance for requiring the works to be in the city.

Mr. Belz offered to open a subscription to pay for removing the plant. He said that the works are a nuisance. The odors travel fully a mile and a haif, whichever direction the wind blows, he stated, and cause sickness, as well as depreciating the value of property.

Mr. Francis admitted that odors are

Mr. Francis admitted that odors are emitted at times.

"If the works were located outside the city," he said, "the ruisance and objectionable features would be removed. If you make a short contract, you might be able within a few years to have plants beyond the city limits."

Chairman Sheehan said the committee will grant another hearing. Francis said the present contract will expire on November 21, and not on September 23.

SUGGESTIONS FOR TABLE AND KITCHEN

When all is told, there is a relish in the old-fashioned dishes made from recipes handed down with religious care from some well-beloved grandmother, who in her time, possessed with her many other virtues the knowledge of good cooking. Among the old-fashioned meat dishes, we have a variety that may be classed as stews and fricassees. These dishes are really more appetizing for hot weather dishes than when meats are roasted or baked.

Irish Stew. This is a dish that ies appetizing and not greasy, which is the objectionable feature of so many meat stews. Have six lean chops cut from the neck of mutton; flour them well and lay them in a stewing pan with a medium-sized onion sliced, a level tablespoonful of butter and place over a quick fire, where they will brown nicely; turning the chops and stirring the onion to prevent burning. When the onions and chops are a light brown add a pint of cold water. If fat arises to the top of the pan chops are a light brown add a pint of cold water. If fat arises to the top of the pan skim it off carefully. Add a level teaspoonful of salt and a quarter of a teaspoonful white pepper; cover the stewing pan and set where the meat will simmer gently. Cook one and one-half hours and skim again. Add a tablespoonful of Worcestershire sauce and see if the gravy is well seasoned. Pare and add eight or ten rather small potatoes cut in half, length-wise; cover closely and simmer again until the potatoes are done. Let the potatoes lie on top of the meat so they will steam. Do not cover them with the liquor, as this will make a quantity of broth and not a good, rich gravy.

Arrange the chops in the center of a hot platter, with the potatoes around the edge.

Pour the gravy over the meat and sprinkle a little minced parsley over it all. A carroct cut into cubes and bolled separately in saited water may be mixed with the pota-to border to add color as well as flavor to the dish.

A Simple Haricot of Mutton.

Take nice rib chops and trim off nearly all the fat. Flour them well, lay in a stewpan, with a very little fat, and brown them well without burning them; when done add one carrot and one turnip cut into cubes, an onion sliced, quarter of a teaspoonful of pepper, a teaspoonful of sait, and water enough to just cover. Cook very gently for two and one-half hours. Skim off every particle of grease. Take up the chops; arrange them around a mound of string beans, which have been cut in 2-inch pieces. Form a border around the chops of the carrots and turnips, and set the dish where it will keep hot while you prepare a brown sauce from the strained liquor. Season this and pour over the meat and serve.

Butter a deep, brown, earthen puddingdish; peel and slice apples, enough to fill it; for two quarts of apples, use a teaspoonful each of powdered cinnamon and salt, half a pound of brown sugar, half a pint of cider or water. Thoroughly mix the spice, salt and sugar upon the apples and pour the water or cider over them.
Cover with a plain pie paste, place in a moderate oven and bake slowly for three hours, taking care that the oven is not hot enough to burn the crust. This may be eaten hot or cold, with sugar and cream.

Hisckberry Potpie.

If you have bread dough on hand, use that, if not, make a soft baking powder dough with two cupfuls flour, two eggs, one cupful sweet milk, and two teaspoonfuls baking powder. Butter a deep dish, put in a thin layer of the dough, cover with the berries, then sprinkle with sugar; add another layer of dough, then more berries and sugar and a top layer of dough, Make a small, round hole in the center of each layer of dough, except the bottom one. Set the basin in a steamer and steam three hours. Serve with cream. Cherries or peaches may be used instead of the blackberries, and are delicious Bits of butter added to the fruit is an improvement.

tive and senatorial districts. It is reported that the Republicans are very much disheartened at the prospect for the fall and that they propose to make one of the most vigorous campaigns of recent years. This view, of course, is from Republican sources and naturally bears some publican sources and naturally bears some of the rose tint of hope.

A very prominent Kentuckian who was in the city to-day, but who does not desire his name used, stated that if the Republicans lost the Legislature next tall they would not see daylight again for years to come. He said the Democrats are determined to redistrict the State and will do it along lines more partisan than ever before attempted. The natural opportunities for a thorough gerrymander are good and the Democrats may be counted upon to take advantage of them.

The congressional districts will also be changed, he thought, although Kentucky did not gain anything under the new apportionment act. He did not deem this of as much importance, however, as the prospect of legislative redistricting.

the National Educational Association in favor of a national university.

This was adopted by a vote—22 to 4.
President Baker of the University of Colorado, after calling the report "a contemptible thing," said:

"This council should affirm its belief in a national university, and should advise the National Educational Association to appropriate money for the best committee that can be appointed to work for its establishment."

HAD EMPLOYED ELLIS GLENN. First Witness Says the Prisoner Once Posed as a Man. REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Parkersburg, W. Va., July 3.—The first witness called to-day in the Ellis Glenn case was M. K. Byers, who swore that he had employed E. B. Glenn at Williamstown in the capacity of a cierk, paper hanger and general store hand.

"Afterwards she left me and went to G. Hoover's. He dealt in loans and mortgages. Have heard defendant speak of his sister and some trouble over certain property."

Byers positively identified the prisoner as the same person who was in his employ. Witness said:
